As the subtitle of the book suggests, the main text is divided into three sections of 'History, Monuments and Legends'. The books begins by setting out the scene of Glendalough. It delves into the history of Saint Kevin and why he chose to found a monastery here in the 6th Century. Although the research for the book is drawn from ancient Latin and Irish manuscripts dating back to the 9th Century, the text is easy to read and understand.

Heritage. While renowned for it's magnificent scenery Glendalough is also full of a rich and varied heritage in terms of history, monuments, archaeology, architecture, landscapes, geology, parks, flora, fauna, wildlife habitats & mining history. The Glendalough Valley was carved out by glaciers during the Ice Age and the two lakes, from which Glendalough gets its name, were formed when the ice eventually thawed.

A wonderful book on Glendalough, and the perfect companion to visits to this must-see site in County Wicklow, Ireland, just south of Dublin. We had the good fortune to meet the author while on our visit there in January. The book maintains a perfect balance between photographs of the site, the history and legends.

Exclusive Excerpt from Glendalough: History, Monuments & Legends by George McClafferty. There is a tradition that following the death of Kevin, the monastery was taken over by his nephew Molibba, who, it is said, became the second abbot and first Bishop of Glendalough. However, there is no historical evidence to support this tradition and it may have been a later fabrication to show the continuation of the Dál Messin Corb, the alleged ancestral lineage of the founder saint.
